

RAY CHARLES AND RACHEL'S FINDING HOME TOUR

HELP TWO BLACK PANTHER SIBLINGS FIND THEIR FOREVER HOME

These two kittens were part of a feral colony near Greenville, SC...it was a nightmare of a place. People living there didn't want the cats and were going so far as to attempt to them run over with their cars. Local volunteers worked tirelessly to save as many of these unfortunate felines as possible, and Ray Charles and Rachel are two of the lucky kitties that got plucked from that horrendous situation.

Both kitties were born with a genetic condition called ENTROPION, which involves a portion of the eyelid being inverted or folded inward against the cat's eyeball.

Surgery was preformed on both kitties to alleviate some of the damage to their sight.

Rachel can see just fine - and while her eyelids DO look a bit different, to me this just adds to her uniqueness, making her look more exotic and appealing.

Ray CAN see - though how much or how clearly we simply do not know. But it doesn't stop him: Ray is a normal, playful, sweet boy! He runs and plays with toys; tussles with Rachel, jumps fearlessly onto my desk and window sills; in this respect, he does everything I would expect from a 7-month old kitten!

These two precious kittens are searching for their forever home...will you please look into your heart to see if you have a place for them?

Ray Charles and Rachel bring a HOPE CHEST with them to their new home:

- Two Petsmart gift cards: value $100 USD each
- Two months supply canned food
- Special crocheted large kitty blanket
- Catnip play mats and other toys
